Q. No: 7 – 20 *SENTENCE PATTERN

The arrangement of words in a sentence (e.g., subject-verb-object) ஒரு வாக்கியத்தில் வார்த்தைகளின் ஏற்பாடு Sentence pattern ஆகும்.

Examination pattern:

* Identify the right pattern of the following sentence.

We must not throw garbage on the streets.

a SVOC b SVIODO c SVOA d. SVAA

A sentence is a group of words with complete sense. There are five patterns for a sentence. They are 1. Subject (S) 2. Verb(V) 3. Object(O) 4.Complement(C) 5.Adjunct(A)

1. Subject (S): Doer of an action is the Subject. It may be a noun or pronoun or both. It usually answers the question "WHO"

E.g.: I am a boy.(pronoun)

Ram is my friend. (noun)

My mother is a teacher.(both)

2. Verb(V) : It is an action word.

E.g.: I eat an ice-cream. (eat - verb)

3. Object(O): It is followed by main verbs. It can be transformed to passive voice.

E.g.: I eat an ice-cream. (an ice-cream - object)

Passive form: An ice-cream is eaten by me.

*In some sentences, there are two objects.

The word which answers the questions 'what' is called Direct Object (DO).

The word which answers the questions 'whom' is called Indirect Object (IO).

e.g.: My father gave me a pen.

me-IO; pen DO

Here two questions may be risen.

1. Whom did your father give a pen?

Ans: 'me' hence it is Indirect Object (I0)

2. What did your father give?

Ans: 'a pen' hence it is Direct Object (DO)

4. Complement (C): It is followed by 'Be' verbs. (is, am, are, can, were) and main verbs such as become, got, grow, seem, appear, look. It is the characteristic feature of a person and profession.

e.g.: I am a teacher.

He grew tired.

You are a student.

My shoes got wet.

She became a teacher.

5. Adjunct (A): Phrases are known as Adjuncts.

E.g.: On seeing a snake, I ran away.

Adjuncts end with-ly

E.g.: The problem will be solved gradually.

She walked slowly.

It answers the question when, where, why and how.

E.g.: He came yesterday. (when) She arrived Delhi. (where)

I took leave because of illness. (why)

I go to school on foot. (How)

Soybeans belong to the legume family. The beans are the seeds of the leguminous soybean plant. They can be grown on a variety of soil and in a wide range of climates. Soybeans are versatile as they can be used as whole beans. Soy sprouts are processed as a variety of food items, such as soy milk, tofu, soy sauce, soy oil and soy dairy alternatives. They are also used for making candles and bio-diesel. Soy is an excellent source of high-quality protein; is low in saturated fats and is cholesterol-free. It is also rich in vitamins, especially Vitamin B complex, minerals such as magnesium, calcium, iron, potassium and copper. In recent times, it has been highly recommended because of its ability to lower the levels of Low Density Lipoprotein (LDL), a bad cholesterol.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has confirmed that foods containing soy protein are likely to reduce the risk of coronary heart disease. An easy way to take soy is as soymilk now available with added flavour. Soymilk does not contain lactose (milk sugar) and can be drunk by those who are allergic to normal milk. To get soymilk, soybeans are soaked in water, ground and then strained. If you don't mind the trouble, you can also make it at home.

44. (a) Write a summary of the following passage.

We need to use our energy sources wisely and economically and conserve as much of our energy resources as wecan. How can we do this?

Firstly, we must reduce our dependence on non-renewable resources. For example, can we design or invent vehicles that do not use petrol or diesel as fuel? If we can, then we can reduce our consumption of petroleum. Many scientists and engineers are working on this idea. Can we use water and wind power, rather than diesel or petrol or coal power to generate electricity?

Secondly, we must look for and use alternative fuels and sources. Rather than using coal, kerosene or cooking gas, can we use animal wastes or plant wastes? We have learnt to extract energy from animal wastes such as cow dung and plant wastes. One successful method is to ferment animal waste in closed containers and produce a gas called biogas, which is just as good as cooking gas. The waste from the biogas land can be used as manure in fields and plantations. A second example is the use of windmills, where wind is used to turn a paddle wheel to produce electricity or to lift water.

Thirdly, we must make greater and cleverer use of the sun. The sun is a perennial source of light and heat for the earth, and it is absolutely free! If we could devise methods for capturing the heat and light from the sun and transforming it into electricity, mankind could benefit greatly. OR

Dr. Carver was an American Black slave, who by dint of his ability became a scientist and educator of world-wide fame. A national monument has now been erected to honour him. This monument has been built at his birth-place in the United States of America. Caver's life and achievements prove the American saying. "You can't keep a great man down." From childhood he showed qualities which gave promise of his genius. He would get up before sunrise to study the wonders of nature before the break of dawn. His guardians wanted to educate him but were too poor to do so. So, he left home when he was hardly ten years old, and began to work at small jobs. Thus he earned a little money for his school expenses. He continued to do so even when he was at college. Thus he passed his M.Sc. examination and became a professor. There he wrote several books on scientific subjects. His chief desire was to do the greatest good to the greatest number of people. He left all his life's savings to found scholarships for research in Agricultural Chemistry. He knew that this research was bound to benefit farmers all over the world. Though world-famous, he never felt proud of his discoveries, "I discovered nothing," he once said, "I am God's agent - the instrument through which He works."

Questions:

(i) How does Dr. Carver's life prove that "you can't keep a great man down"?

(ii) What can you say about the early life of Dr. Carver?

(iii) What did Dr. Carver do with his life's savings?

(iv) How was he honoured for his commendable achievement?

(v) Is there anything to prove that Dr. Carver was a humble person?
